

Winter Humor

Although he was a qualified meteorologist, Smith ran up a terrible record of forecasting for the TV news. He became something of a joke when a newspaper began keeping a record of his predictions and showed that he'd been wrong almost three hundred times in a single year.

That kind of notoriety was enough to get him fired. He moved to another part of the country and applied for a similar job.

One blank on the application asked for the reason for his leaving his previous position. Smith wrote, "The climate didn't agree with me."

What kind of coffee were they serving when the Titanic hit an iceberg?

A: Sanka!

Q: Why is the slippery ice like music?

A: If you don't C sharp - you'll B flat!

Q: If you live in an igloo, what's the worst thing about global warming?

A: No privacy!

Q: If it's zero degrees outside today and it's going to be twice as cold tomorrow, how cold is it going to be?

A: ??????

It was autumn, and the Indians on the remote reservation asked their new chief if the winter was going to be cold or mild. Since he was an Indian Chief in a modern society, he had never been taught the old secrets, and when he looked at the sky he couldn't tell what the heck the weather was going to be. Nevertheless to be on the safe side, he replied to his tribe that the winter was indeed going to be cold and that the members of the village should collect wood to be prepared.

Being a practical leader, after several days he got an idea. He went to the phone booth, called the National Weather Service and asked, "Is the coming winter going to be cold?" "It looks like this winter is going to be quite cold indeed," the meteorologist at the weather service responded. So the chief went back to his people and told them to collect even more wood in order to be prepared.

One week later he called the National Weather Service again. "Is it going to be a very cold winter?" he asked. "Yes," the man at National Weather replied, "It's going to be a very cold winter." The chief again went back to his people and ordered them to collect every scrap of wood they could find.

Two weeks later he called the National Weather Service again. "Are you absolutely sure that the winter is going to be very cold?" "Absolutely," the man replied. "It looks like it's going to be one of the coldest winters ever". "How can you be so sure?" the chief asked. The weatherman replied, "The Indians are collecting firewood like crazy!"

Something to think about...How does the guy who drives the snowplow get to work in the morning?

Viking Fans

Two Viking fans died and went to Hell. After a while, the Devil came by to see how his new guests were doing. To his amazement, he found they were still wearing their winter gear and seemed to be quite comfortable. The Devil asked why they weren't hot.

One replied, "We come from Minnesota where it's always cold. This is feeling pretty good to us." This upset the Devil, so he turned up the thermostat. Awhile later the Devil looked in on them. To his surprise he found they were still wearing their winter gear. The Devil questioned them on it again.

"You have to remember that we are from Minnesota and it's very, very cold there. This is feeling nice to us."

The Devil was even angrier at this, so he turned the thermostat all the way up. He waited some time and then went back to the fans. This time he found they had only unzipped their coats, but still had all their winter clothes on. The Devil couldn't understand what was going on. The punishment down here was supposed to be the unbearable heat. It wasn't working on these two. He had to ask again what the deal was. One replied, "We are Minnesotans and we just got over a freezing winter. This is really great for us."

A light flickered in the Devil's mind. He went to the thermostat and turned it off. He thought if the heat wasn't a punishment, maybe he'd give them some freezing temperatures. A little while later the Devil came back to check in on his guests only to find them cheering and giving each other high fives, happier than ever! The Devil questioned them on their actions and they said happily, "Back home they always said, the Vikings will win the Super Bowl when Hell freezes over!!!"

New England Home

My husband and I purchased an old home in Northern New York State from two elderly sisters. Winter was fast approaching and I was concerned about the house's lack of insulation. "If they could live here all those years, so can we!" my husband confidently declared. One November night the temperature plunged to below zero, and we woke up to find interior walls covered with frost. My husband called the sisters to ask how they had kept the house warm. After a rather brief conversation, he hung up. "For the past 30 years," he muttered, "they've gone to Florida for the winter."

Two friends lived in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada. They were sick of winter, so they went to a travel agent and booked a trip to Australia.

When the two friends got off the plane - still wearing their down jackets, wool hats and snow boots - they wandered into a pub and sat down. The locals wondered about these strangers, so one of the Aussies walked over to the visitors and said, "G'day, mates.

Where're you from?"

"Saskatoon, Saskatchewan," one of the Canadians replied.

"Oh," said the Aussie, returning to his table.

"So where are they from?" the other locals asked.

"Don't know," replied the Aussie. "They don't appear to speak English."

It was so cold...

The politicians had their hands in their OWN pockets!

North Dakota Border

Their land had been the subject of a minor dispute between the United States and Canada for years.

The widowed woman lived on the farm with her son and three grandchildren.

One day, her son came into her room holding a letter. "I just got some news, Mom," he said. "The government has come to an agreement with the people in North Dakota. They've decided that our land is really part of the United States. We have the right to approve or disapprove of the agreement. What do you think?"

"What do I think?" his mother said. "Sign it! Call them right now and tell them we accept! I don't think I can stand another Canadian winter!"

Q: What do you get when you cross a polar bear with a seal?

A: A polar bear.

Q: What did the Polar Bear say when it saw a seal on a skateboard?

A: "Meals on Wheels!"

Knock! Knock!

Who's there?

Snow!

Snow who?

Snow business like show business!

Knock! Knock!

Who's there?

Eddy!

Eddy who?

Eddy idea how I can cure this cold!

Knock! Knock!

Who's there?

Snow!

Snow who?

Snow skating today - the ice is too thin!

Knock! Knock!

Who's there?

Guitar!

Guitar who?

Guitar coats, it's cold outside!

Knock! Knock!

Who's there?

Cameron!

Cameron who?

Cameron film are all you need to take pictures of the northern lights!